

EDITOR

Natalie B. Cole

ASSOCIATE EDITORS

John Corso, Sherman Folland, David Garfinkle, Vincent Khapoya,
Brian Murphy, and Barbara Mabee

ADVISORY BOARD

Brian A. Connery, Ronald Cramer, Brian Goslin, Laila Guessous,
Barbara B. Hamilton, Serge Kruk, Frank J. Lepkowski,
Karen Miller, Kevin Murphy, and Susan Wood

MANAGING EDITORS

Sherry Wynn Perdue, Director, Oakland University Writing Center
Pamela Mitzelfeld, Asst. Director, Oakland University Writing Center

Statement of Purpose: The Oakland Journal is meant to serve three purposes: 1) to provide an open forum for university people to get to know each other's work and creative energies, and 2) to provide a marketplace of ideas that will work to the general benefit; and, 3) to provide a beacon to students on the importance of writing as well as a place for them to achieve their first publication.

Advice to Authors: We prefer articles from Oakland University faculty, staff, students, and alumni. Generally, articles should be 15 double-spaced pages or fewer. Email submissions if possible. Deadlines are July 1 for the Fall issue, and Nov.1 for the Winter issue. We invite submissions concerning your research, creative work, and material you feel would be of interest to other OU people, our neighbors and which will enhance intellectual exchange and discussion for the benefit of Oakland University.

Editorial decisions are made in consultation with the associate editors. Submissions should be sent in Microsoft Word format. By mail, send to Managing Editors, Oakland Journal, Writing Center, Oakland University, Rochester, MI 48309; by email to: wynn@oakland.edu or ptmitzel@oakland.edu. We prefer email submissions.

Getting a Copy: If you want a copy, these are provided without charge to all faculty, staff, and students upon request. Others may purchase a copy for $3.50. Full time faculty and administrative level staff receive each issue automatically. Anyone can download any current or previous article at the Journal's website archives by going to <http://www.oakland.edu> (the Oakland University homepage), click "Faculty & Staff" , then "OU News", then "Publications" and select us from the menu.

Funding Support: The Oakland Journal is made possible by generous support from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost.

Copyright 2010 Oakland University