

CONTRIBUTORS

Lizabeth A. Barclay is Professor of Management in our School of Business Administration. Besides her research activity and interest in the Genome Project, she is very active with our successful student group and their chapter in the Society for Human Resources Management. barclay@oakland.edu

Bill Byrne is an adjunct lecturer in the Rhetoric and Communications Department.

Philip T. Clampitt is lecturer in the biological sciences. Prof Clampitt takes a very active interest in improving the student science ability in the classroom especially where it involves the teaching and understanding of evolution. clampitt@oakland.edu

Sherman Folland edits the Journal and directs The Flicks Cinema in addition to his research in health economics, which took him to Barcelona this past year as well as to the London School of Economics. folland@oakland.edu

Fay Hansen is an Associate Professor of Biological Sciences. She has a PhD in physiology from Wisconsin. In addition to her biological research, in the past few years she has taken great interest in environmental issues. She founded and coordinates a local group, White Lake Residents C.A.R.E. She also serves as a board member of the Oakland Land Conservancy. hansensm@oakland.edu

Karen S. Markel is Assistant Professor in the Department of Management and Marketing. Her research work focuses on discrimination in the workplace as well as employee involvement in manufacturing establishments. markel@oakland.edu

Nahum Z. Medalia professor emeritus in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Sandra Packard, Professor of Education at Oakland University. National Council of Professors of Educational Administration Conference, August 6, Branson, Missouri. Her keen eye for university life is surely informed in part by her prior service as President of the University. packard@oakland.edu

Alberto G. Rojo is Associate Professor of Physics. His recent grants include an NSF and a Sloan Foundation grant. Alberto is from Argentina, where he met the subject of his article. His recent publications include a Physics Review A article in which he studies the spin states of atoms and related phenomena, some of this he explains to us in his piece on Borges. rojo@oakland.edu

Mark Severson is Professor and Chair of Chemistry. Prof Severson has written on the value of writing in the general education curriculum, also on the development of interdisciplinary courses between chemistry and physics. He and other OU investigators recently obtained a National Science Foundation grant on enhancing science awareness among nonscience majors. severson@oakland.edu

David W. Shantz is Associate Professor of Psychology. His fields of research are clinical psychology and personality development. Special interests include aggressive behavior in children and factors that lead to better success for college students. shantz@oakland.edu

Miron Stano is Professor of Economics and Management in Oakland's School of Business Administration. A shorter version of this article will appear in The Lord Amherst Advisor. During the past year, he presented a talk and discussion on the "crisis" in health care costs in the Economic Seminar Series. stano@oakland.edu

Gertrude White is Distinguished Professor Emerita in the English Department. She is a charter faculty member of the University having served from 1959 to 1981. In the Oakland University Chronicles, she has described those early years as "just sort of out of this world, they really were." gmwhite@oakland.edu

Lynne Williams is Professor of Lab Sciences in the School of Health Sciences. She serves as vice chair of the ASCLS Scientific Assembly. jlwillia@oakland.edu